

Abstract of the Disclosure

A portable apparatus is disclosed for magnetically treating fluids. The device creates a turbulent fluid flow pattern within itself while subjecting the flow to a magnetic field. The device contains one or more magnets. The orientation of multiple magnets within the device are arranged in a non-parallel position with respect to one another. The magnetic field is directed through the flow in a non-parallel and non-perpendicular orientation.